

Search Site

Last grain elevator in downtown Kalispell to stop running, new facility underway

by Vanessa Perez
Wednesday, October 30th 2019

AA

CHS silo (Photo: NBC Montana)

KALISPELL, Mont. — Workers at CHS in Kalispell are taking the last bit of grains out of the downtown silo. They're transitioning into a brand new $14.5 million facility on the city's east side.

Search Site

ADVERTISING

CHS is also working on a full-service fuel island that will be open to the public.

The company says it the end of an era.

“At the time it was built it was the edge of Kalispell, and so we’ve put a lot of work into that elevator, keeping it up to date and current. It’s kind of bittersweet, we’ve babied it all these years, and now it’s time to move on,” CHS general manager Mark Lalum said.

The city can now revitalize that part of town.

MORE TO EXPLORE

Iowa teacher on administrative leave after social media post on Greta Thunberg

Police: 'Chronic masturbator' caught after numerous complaints